Annual
Report 2010

December 15, 2010

Honorable Sheldon Silver
Speaker of the Assembly
Room 932, Legislative Office Building
Albany, New York 12248

Re: Annual Report of the Committee on Codes - 2010

Dear Speaker Silver:

It is with great pleasure that on behalf of the Committee on Codes, I submit to you the committee's 2010 Annual Report highlighting its activities during the last half of the 2009 – 2010 Legislative Session.

Among the committee's many notable accomplishments were expanding our protection of abandoned infants and the disabled, and further protecting the most vulnerable elements of our society – our children – from the threats posed by sex offenders. We also created new crimes specifically targeting perpetrators of domestic violence who throttle or strangle their victims thereby giving prosecutors the tools to help stem the scourge of domestic violence. We also enacted laws that protect pedestrians and drivers from the dangers posed by those who misuse their privilege to drive.

I am also particularly proud of the creation of an independent Office of Indigent Legal Services in the enacted SFY 2010-11 budget. This new office and its governing board put New York State on a firm footing in fulfilling its constitutional mandate to provide a quality legal defense to those who are unable to afford one.

There were numerous other legislative accomplishments of which the Committee and the Assembly can be justly proud that are set forth in this report.

The Committee extends its appreciation to you for your support. In addition, I would like to thank the committee members and staff for their hard work during the 2010 Legislative Session.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Joseph R. Lentol". The signature is written in a cursive, flowing style with a large initial "J".

V. CODES COMMITTEE PARTICIPATION IN HEARINGS IN 2010

A. Implementation and Funding of the Rockefeller Drug Law Reform Legislation

At the time of publication of this report, the Correction, Codes, Judiciary, and Alcoholism and Substance Abuse Committees have planned a public hearing for December 20, 2010, to examine the implementation and funding of Rockefeller Drug Law Reform by the courts and community-based programs. Specifically, the committees will take testimony concerning: (1) the availability, adequacy and distribution of funding for community-based residential and out-patient substance abuse treatment and case management services for drug offenders court-ordered into treatment as an alternative to incarceration; (2) how the judicial diversion program authorized as part of the Rockefeller Drug Law reform legislation has been implemented by the courts; and (3) the role and funding of alternative to incarceration and defender-based programs in the implementation of the Rockefeller Drug Law reforms.

As part of the SFY 2009-10 New York State budget, the legislature enacted significant reforms of the “Rockefeller Drug Laws.” The reforms enacted in the budget significantly increased judicial discretion - authorizing judges to sentence many non-violent drug offenders to probation as a possible alternative to state prison. The legislation also created a statutorily defined, uniform judicial diversion program, expanded the availability of drug treatment courts and allowed certain non-violent drug offenders serving long terms of incarceration under the old drug laws to apply to the courts for possible resentencing.

Returning discretion to judges to sentence drug offenders to treatment as a potential alternative to prison has increased the need for community-based substance abuse treatment programs and alternative to incarceration services. Additionally, the demand for drug treatment courts has risen. According to the Division of Criminal Justice Services, as of October 1, 2010, 1000 persons who would likely have been sent to state prison were instead sentenced to an alternative sentence – 300 received a local jail sentence or probation while 700 were ordered into a court-monitored judicial diversion program.

In order to meet this increased need for substance abuse treatment and other alternative to incarceration programs, the SFY 2010-2011 state budget included funding for outpatient and residential substance abuse treatment services, expansion of drug treatment courts, probation services and alternative to incarceration and reentry programs. The majority of funds provided to support Rockefeller Drug Law reform are derived from federal funds received as a result of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009.

This hearing will provide an opportunity for the committees to hear from community-based programs, the courts and executive agencies about how the funds provided in the SFY 2010-2011 budget have been and will be distributed and utilized and the implementation of the judicial diversion program. The Correction Committee, in partnership with the Codes and Alcoholism and Substance Abuse Committees will continue to monitor the program to ensure that the intent of the Rockefeller Reform legislation is carried out.
